

Haylee Linam

UF/IFAS Extension Escambia County 4-H Agent I
Northwest Extension District

Profile

Born and raised in Escambia County, my husband Benjamin and I currently live on our own little farm in Cantonment, FL. We have a cow, two goats, and two cats. We love to travel and go camping!

My passion is for encouraging growth and success in livestock, legislature, and leadership 4-H projects. I have been able to partner with local youth development organizations to plan and implement livestock shows and have taken my love of animal science projects to the classroom through embryology programming. I am excited to be a part of this incredible team that strives to make the best, better!

Development of Organizational and Volunteer Systems to Support Youth Development in Escambia County

As the 4-H Agent in Escambia County, my team and I collaborate with other local youth development organizations, community partners, and Extension professionals on the county, district, state, and multi-state levels. Through these collaborations we are able to provide youth opportunities, maintain and effective 4-H Foundation and Advisory Committee, and promote 4-H activities and events in the community to encourage participation and support. These efforts could not be accomplished without properly training and screening volunteers that are willing and able to lead community-based clubs and educational programs. My team and I work to maintain and support current 4-H clubs and encourage the formation of new clubs.

Youth Development in Escambia County

In Escambia County, my team and I work to develop, implement, and evaluate educational programs and opportunities for youth in a variety of delivery methods, to include community-based clubs, school-based clubs, military-based clubs, school enrichment programs, day camps, judging teams, and educational workshops and events.
